

Dear CPHA Members,

I want to thank you for joining CPHA because your membership strengthens public health in Colorado. As a member, you are helping CPHA to create professional educational opportunities and to advocate for policies that protect and promote the health of all Coloradans. This work would not be possible without your support. I am honored to be a part of CPHA's network of professionals who are dedicated to improving health in the communities across the state where we live, learn, work, and play.

CPHA's greatest asset and strength is our members' wisdom, experience, and passion. I encourage you to take full advantage of CPHA's resources, communications, and events to connect with your fellow members and to learn about all the exciting work that your friends and colleagues are doing to advance public health. I also urge you to explore the many different ways that you can get involved in your association. You can read about many of these opportunities in this newsletter, from attending the Public Health in the Rockies Conference to volunteering on one of our committees to joining our board.

As the new President of CPHA, I invite you to be in touch with me and with my fellow board members if you have any questions about our association or if you have any suggestions about how we can better serve public health and our members. It is an honor to be connected to you, and I thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Kyle Legleiter, MPH
